

Coaching at Work Series of Masterclasses 2018

Building Shared Leadership: The Practice and Presence of the Systemic Team Coach

Dr Hilary Lines

Seminar date: Thursday 17th May 2018

Venue: The BPS London Offices

Timings: 10:00 am – 5:00 pm

MASTERCLASS OUTLINE

With the demand for team coaching accelerating fast, it is important we partner with our clients to build the type of shared leadership that will help them facilitate real change in their stakeholder communities. And to become aware of our own leadership style and impact and how we can best bring this to our coach-client relationships. In this masterclass, Dr Hilary Lines will share her personal approach to building leadership through systemic team coaching.

MASTERCLASS AIMS & OBJECTIVES

- Identify what challenges we face as team coaches, and what guiding principles and practices help us to anchor ourselves in our work
- Highlight the importance of holding a systemic lens in team coaching work, and using the 'Touchpoints' of real potential value
- Understand the relationship dynamics that can easily ensnarl us in team coaching and working through these in a constructive way
- Building team engagement and learning through scoping, inquiry and shared discovery
- Investigating how we can bring our own leadership presence and authority to team coaching and increase our resourcefulness.

MASTERCLASS CONTENT

In this masterclass, Dr Hilary Lines will look at how the approach, philosophy and presence that we embody as team coaches impacts on the coach-team relationship and the ability of the team to lead change with their stakeholders.

Participants will be invited to apply their own concepts, frameworks and approaches presented to their own team coaching client work as well as Hilary's experiences and that of other participants.

HILARY LINES is an executive and team coach, educator and facilitator, with over 30 years' experience of working with senior leaders in a range of sectors across the world. The driving force for her work lies in her belief that leaders create business value through working constructively with difference: She helps leaders and teams find new ways of relating and leading that ignite energy and deliver results.

Hilary leads the Academy of Executive Coaching Master Diploma in Systemic Team Coaching, the world's first programme in Systemic Team Coaching. She was a founding member of the programme faculty in 2010, working with Professor Peter Hawkins and John Leary-Joyce. She is also on the faculty of Teleos Leadership Institute's ICF accredited Coach Development Programme.

Prior to running her own executive and team coaching practice, Hilary was Global Head of Partner and Leadership Development at PwC Consulting.

Hilary is co-author of 'Touchpoint Leadership: Creating collaborative energy cross teams and organisations' (Kogan Page 2013, with Jacqui Scholes-Rhodes), and 'Systemic Team Coaching' (AoEC Press, with John Leary-Joyce, to be published in January 2018). She is also author of 'Coaching the Commissioning and Clarifying: A case study of a professional services firm', in 'Leadership Team Coaching in Practice', edited by Peter Hawkins, 2014.
